

SPOTTED TAIL'S TIPPE.

Mysteries of the Toilet of a Nakobah Princess.

RED CLOUD INDIAN AGENCY.

NEBRASKA, September 10, 1875.

Early on Tuesday morning I left the White River bottom, where the white banks of the Spotted Tail's hamlet. From a distance it had quite an imposing aspect. In the centre was the largest tepee, which was very tall and had a long tail. The others were smaller, and one of them was shaped like a dome. I rode to the principal tepee, a tall, painted chief, who sat in a seat facing me, while I recited the story of the Nakobah. It is the finest in the Sioux nation, and the interior is sumptuous, from a barbed wire fence to a polished hunting knife. Soft robes were spread upon the ground as divans, and sitting mats, and the walls were decorated with trinkets and arms of various kinds. It is a room for the hunting and war parties, and several women sat in the Lodge. The Crazy in the Lodge invited us to be seated, and my companion opened a conversation with him, in the language of the Sioux, interposed with a few words of Dakota. While we were thus engaged a man squatted in one side of the tepee, was making her morning toilet, with the assistance of a woman. Her hair seemed to act as a handmaiden. While I am fully aware that my fair Caucasian readers are dying with curiosity to learn the details of the ceremony, I modestly refrain from giving a picture. After the rites were concluded.

TUESDAY AFTERNOON, SEPT. 21.

The Savannah News evidently has not T. J. about the establishment. It will not stay the same old thing, but keeps improving.

THE EDITOR OF THE SAVANNAH COURIER

is getting to be profane.—Sav. News.

It is to be wondered at, when even the most untrained eyes can see that press dare to be merry over the T. J.

THE NASHVILLE, BERRY COUNTY, JOUR-

circle.—Cause—want of paper and other material. It proposes to come to the surface again, when it accumulates a stock of raw material.

THE CHARLESTON NEWS and COURIER

is distinctly understood that there is no yellow fever in that city, nor has there been any case of fever which can be attributed to the yellow fever.

At the meeting of the Board of Trade

this morning, a following committee was appointed to attend the railroad

meeting at Greenville, Marionville county, on the 6th of October, with power to appoint alternates: J. H.

James, chairman; H. A. Fuller, Col.

THE SAVANNAH NEWS swallowed its soul in a very sententious manner.

The only words that the event are found in the following card signed by Mr. J. H. Estlin.

By the above, it is known that I have written to the Savannah Advertiser.

There will be no change in the name of the Morning

IN 1872 Grant had a popular majority of 70,271, or more than any candidate

had ever received before.

During 1874 eighteen states turned this vast majority into an opposition one of 18,965. Subsequent elections show that the opposition majority is now 31—

a net reduction of 932,618 votes, or nearly a million. Such a reaction was never before known. No president was ever re-elected as Grant has been.

Something About the Viceissitude

Recent movements in the Radical "Repubbegan with the "Black" Riches,

and with the "right" of the party.
The most important news is that the party is about to mix with the "right" of the

has been a "left" party, has been a "right" party, and the "right" party is about to mix with the "left" party.
The result will be that most who will be a "right" party.

THE AULD KIRK YARD.

There's a sham for every wench,
There's a kiss for every fellow,
And there's a peacock in the auld kirk yard.

For there are the weary rest,
Wt's not carkin care oppressed—
The pur man's a guid's the best.

They may rear and they may deck
Their whiskers of restlessness,
O'er haurtly's frail wrek.

In the auld kirk yard,
But what that a stae they rear—
It's new worth are the bairns,
Shed by friends o'er the bier.

In the auld kirk yard.

Even the bowie flairs that bloom,
Like sweet meunies free the ton,
Dispensin' a' the gloom,

In the auld kirk yard.

Are a litter mair, I weet,
P' the bairns, bein' fien'd

Wt's its covertail in the auld kirk yard.

They may rear and they may deck
Their whiskers of restlessness,
O'er haurtly's frail wrek.

In the auld kirk yard.

But what that a stae they rear—
It's new worth are the bairns,
Shed by friends o'er the bier.

In the auld kirk yard.

But when winter's winds are blawn,
And spring wares i' fair wares,
Then we'll hush and be in the auld kirk yard.

For man as weel as wae's,

There are ghaelions number hoors,
But they pass and then to coors,

In the auld kirk yard.

Summary of State News.

AGRICULTURE.

—It was affecting to witness an old male, apparently overcome, by "Darling I am Growing Old," as played by the Warrington band at the Globe Hotel corner yesterday evening. It was ready to lay down and die, when some unfeling wretch yelled "oats" in his ear, and that is the last we have seen of him.—Constitutional.

GRIFIN.

—Mrs. Eugene E. Speer, we regret to learn, is lying extremely low at Judge Speer's plantation in Whitfield county. She will be brought to the city as soon as her condition will allow.

—While at BII. Cunningham's mineral springs the other day, we noticed about 4 acres of bottom land planted in corn the 20th of June, which in our judgment, will produce all of seven barrels to the acre. The seed was literally sown in the drill, and it was cultivated solely with the hand, the ground being too low to admit of the plow.

—A couple of young men who had some misunderstanding a few days ago, agreed to have a little meeting on last Friday night at 12 o'clock, which meeting was had, but from some cause or other, no blood was shed, and the matter stands adjourned.—News.

SUMMERS.

—Dr. J. G. Eider amputated the right arm of Miss Mollie Knard, above the elbow joint, and it healed by the first intention, with only one dressing. The young lady was so unfortunate as to have her arm caught in her father's sleeve and it became so dreadfully mangled as to render amputation necessary. Miss Mollie is only about 16 years of age, and she is the only girl with a hermaphrodite that would have done credit to the stoutest man. She has never lost a night's rest or missed a meal after the surgical operation was performed. Dr. Eider was also called upon, one day last week, to cut a piece of glass out of the face of Mr. Olde Hickman, a young man of this place, which had been introduced into his eye. The operation was performed with some difficulty but quite successfully. The piece of glass was over half an inch long and three quarters of an inch thick.
